WHAT IS SEXUAL ORIENTATION DISCRIMINATION?

Sexual orientation discrimination is verbal or physical conduct that is directed at an individual because of their sexual orientation. Such conduct may subject the individual to different treatment which interferes with or limits their ability to participate in or benefit from the services, activities, or privileges provided by the University, or otherwise adversely affects the individual’s employment or education.

Examples can include:
- Focusing on an individual's sexual orientation rather than on their credentials during a job interview.
- Denying raises, benefits, promotions, or job performance evaluations on the basis of an individual’s sexual orientation.
- Denying an individual access to an educational program due to their sexual orientation.
- Engaging in or sanctioning continuing discriminatory conduct, unrelated to the academic discussion in a course or class, thus creating a hostile environment for individual students based on their sexual orientation.

WHAT IS SEXUAL ORIENTATION HARASSMENT?

Sexual orientation harassment is an illegal form of discrimination and is defined as verbal or physical conduct directed at an individual because of their sexual orientation that is sufficiently severe, pervasive, or persistent enough to create a hostile work or educational environment.

Examples can include:
- Engaging in behaviors and/or conversations designed to harass an individual because of their sexual orientation.
- Sending degrading e-mail messages to someone because of their sexual orientation.
- Spray-painting sexually insulting comments that are based on an individual’s sexual orientation on a residence hall door.

WHAT CAN I DO IF I’M THE TARGET OF DISCRIMINATION OR HARASSMENT?

If you feel physically threatened, remove yourself from the situation and seek help immediately from University Security at 389-2111, or dial 911 for the Mankato Police Department.

If the situation is not physically threatening, and you feel comfortable talking to the individual, tell them you’re offended by the comment or behavior and ask them to stop.

If you’re not comfortable talking directly to the individual, you can identify a third party whom you and the other individual mutually respect and ask for their assistance in helping the two of you talk through the behavior and why you found it offensive.

You should document incidents of discrimination and harassment immediately— who, when, where, what was said or done, and the names of any witnesses. Discrimination and/or harassment complaints should be submitted to the Office of Affirmative Action to determine if the complaint falls under the 1B.1 Nondiscrimination in Employment and Education Opportunity Policy or for referral to another University office.

CAN SEXUAL ORIENTATION DISCRIMINATION OR HARASSMENT HAPPEN TO YOU?

Sexual orientation discrimination or harassment can occur in a variety of relationships, including faculty - student, supervisor - employee, student - student, employee - employee, and other relationships with persons having business with or visiting the campus. Comments or actions that constitute discrimination or harassment are intended by some to be humorous or to express familiarity. This doesn’t excuse the behavior or the need to address it.

However, not every act that may be offensive to an individual or group constitutes discrimination or harassment. Harassment includes action beyond the mere expression of views, words, symbols or thoughts that another individual finds offensive. To be considered a violation of university policy, the conduct must be serious enough to deny or limit an individual’s ability to participate in or benefit from the services, activities, or privileges provided by Minnesota State University, Mankato.
