

Average Farm Size 2002

Average farm size varies greatly across the state. The counties with the smallest average farm size are found mostly in the urban and suburban counties of the metro area, while those with the largest average farm size are located in the far west and northwest regions of the state. The average farm size for Minnesota was 340 acres. About 40 percent of the counties had larger average farm sizes.

Data source: USDA National Agricultural Statistics Service,
2002 Census of Agriculture
© 2005 Center for Rural Policy and Development