

Social Security Payments Per Capita, 2004

Social Security payments are made up of monthly payments to retired and disabled persons, their dependents and survivors, plus lump-sum payments to survivors. This does not include medical payments, however. The distribution of Social Security payments by dollar amount from county to county is largely a reflection of the distribution of senior citizens. The average per Minnesotan was $1,592.

Data source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce,
Bureau of Economic Affairs
© Center for Rural Policy and Development