Interdisciplinary humanities explores human experience through examination of texts, performances, art symbols, cultural and historical systems, and other modes of human expression. The Humanities Program is concerned with connections between particular texts and their social and historical contexts, with relationships among the various arts—literary, performing and visual—and with links to other disciplines that explore the human condition.

The Humanities Program helps to prepare its students to use language effectively, to locate information from a variety of sources and examine it critically, to discover patterns of relationships within this wealth of information and sources, to view these patterns within cultural and historical perspectives, and to assess the beliefs, values, and ideologies that lie beneath or within these patterns and perspectives.

Admission to Major is granted by the department. Minimum university admission requirements are:
