What is Campus Kitchen?

The Campus Kitchen Project at Minnesota State University, Mankato is a groundbreaking initiative that brings colleges and universities together with student volunteers, on-campus dining service professionals, and community organizations to combat hunger in cities across the United States.

Campus Kitchen Mankato knows there are people in our community who need nourishing meals. And, we know that every college campus has unserved food in its dining halls and brilliant students in its classrooms. So we put them all together. We empower thousands of students each year to recycle food from their cafeterias, turn these donations into 300 nourishing meals per week, and deliver those meals (along with a friendly visit) to those who need it most in Mankato.

Service Learning

Community Based Learning is at the heart of the Campus Kitchen Mankato. Students from across the institution are engaged in service-learning projects that enhance the program and bring classroom learning alive.

Service Learning is becoming increasingly popular on college campuses across the country and MSU is no exception. The collaboration with Campus Kitchen is providing students with valuable experience that can help them in many aspects of their lives.

By involving students in projects that benefit the community, students are learning to break down stereotypes, apply knowledge learned in the classroom to real-life situations, receive job skills, obtain contacts in the industry that could help place them with a job, and they can feel a greater sense of worth by working on something greater than themselves.

Who are the Campus Kitchen Leaders?

The best part about CKM is that all of this amazing work is led by college students, our next generation of leaders, business people, public servants, educators and non-profit professionals. Our student volunteers ARE the Campus Kitchen Project, and their work is what makes CKM tick. You’ll see evidence of that throughout their work. Everything from food recycling, to program planning, to leading the cooking and delivery shifts, to special initiatives for clients, has the fingerprints of college students all over it.

The Campus Kitchen at Minnesota State University, Mankato Student Leadership Team is the most wonderful addition to our program. The CK assistants take on added responsibilities to help lead the team. Each student leader ensures that the program is running smoothly, helps train and teach volunteers, plans programs, is learning about ending hunger, and having FUN!!! Campus Kitchen would not be able to happen without these amazing students!

“I have realized how much of an impact I can make by simple gestures. I want to help make a difference in lives because I know I have the capability to do so.”
- Amber Schramm, Leadership Team

“Campus Kitchen has opened my eyes to homelessness, made me become more involved in campus and the community, and has changed how I interact with others.”
- Rebecca Vogt, Leadership Team
