at Mankato East High School
Japan (hello-Konichiwa)
Origami is a kind of paper sculpture developed by the Japanese in which squares of paper are folded to make birds, animals, flowers and other decorative art.

Ghana (hello-Maakyé)
Kente cloth is a colorful (red, green and gold) fabric traditionally made by the Ashanti people of Ghana. Geometric shapes and patterns are repeated in the weavings. Kente cloth is worn for special occasions.

Vietnam (hello-Chào)
During the Vietnamese celebration of the New Year, young men dance under a paper-mache and cloth dragon. This is an exciting part of the colorful Tet festival parade. Enjoy making your own dragon.

Holland (hello-Hallo)
Holland’s windmills are used for milling grain, pumping water, threshing and sawing and are seen in a variety of shapes and sizes. Tints of blue or white surfaces are found on tile, tableware, ornaments, and ceramic or wooden shoes.

Global Kites
Children all over the world enjoy flying kites. Simple and inexpensive kites may be made of paper, tissue paper, light weight tablecloths, and paper bags.
